

Dr Conor McCarthy has been Medical Director of the Irish Rugby Football Union (IRFU) since 2004 and has coordinated its medical activities. He sits on a number International Rugby Board working groups. Since 2009, he has been on the Irish Sports Councils High Performance Committee. His clinical work is as a Consultant Rheumatologist at the Mater Hospital and as a Senior Lecturer at University College Dublin.

His rugby sporting achievements include playing for Irish Schoolboys, the Irish Universities, and representative honours with Connacht for six seasons, including one as captain.