Dear Harrison,

I expect that you are aware, to some extent, of the existence of an organisation called the Punch Club. It is a small group of surgeons who met in the first place to discuss punch resection of the prostate because at the larger meetings this appeared to be a neglected subject. The original members were Tom Lane, Henry Stewart, John Swinney and myself. Others have been added. They have all had some interest in punch resection of the prostate but this has ceased to be a very important "qualification". We would like to add one or two new members to the Club now and we feel that it would be very desirable that you should join us. I know that you have always done quite a lot of prostate punching and you would have the opportunity of discussing not only that subject but many others. We meet about once a year in different centres. The next one will be in Glasgow next February.

I enclose a list of the present members. I hope that you will agree to join us.
